- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Response to Amendment

1. The amendment filed 1/25/07 is objected to under 35 U.S.C. 132(a) because it introduces new matter into the disclosure. 35 U.S.C. 132(a) states that no amendment shall introduce new matter into the disclosure of the invention. The added material, which is not supported by the original disclosure, is as follows: The original specification referred to “an oscillation wave (i.e., shock wave)” which with the current amendment changes to simply a “shock wave”. Such a change in specification raises a question of new matter as originally disclosed the examiner applied this admittance of a shock wave to be an alternate for the oscillation wave in rejecting the claims. However, upon cancellation of such language raises the new matter issue.

Applicant is required to cancel the new matter in the reply to this Office Action.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 1/25/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Regarding the arguments that the cited references do not teach alone or in combination the shock wave feature of the invention. However, it is noted that as originally disclosed, applicant has admitted that the oscillation wave is regarded as a shock wave. Thus such an admittance is acknowledged as an alternative type or name of a wave applied to a piezoelectric element. Applicant indicates that the examiner is incorrectly asserting that the shock wave of the invention is identical to an oscillation wave. However, to direct the applicant's attention on page 4, lines 23-24, such a language is disclosed that indicate the oscillation wave is also a shock wave. Thus the assertion by the examiner of the oscillation wave to be a shock wave is not incorrect.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over admitted prior art (APA) in view of Ohnishi (Pub. # 20040050176).

Applicant admits the known device teach a flowmeter having first and second ultrasonic wave generating and detecting piezoelectric devices that alternately transmit and receive ultrasonic waves and the time being determined between each transmitter and receiver and based upon the difference the flow rate being determined. The only inventive feature in the instant invention is the use of the shock-wave (Oscillation Wave) generating piezoelectric element. Ohnishi teaches the use of oscillation wave generating and receiving piezoelectric devices in the same arrangements as the APA positions the ultrasonic piezoelectric transducers. It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the oscillation wave generating and receiving piezoelectric elements for the known ultrasonic wave generating and receiving piezoelectric elements since such are mere alternatives that would function equally in the environment of measuring flow in a conduit without being in direct contact with the fluid. As to the impulse voltage with a steep rising edge and steep falling edge, it would have been an inherent characteristics of the oscillating wave compared to the ultrasonic wave.

Conclusion

5. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
